As the News has not seen fit to give the deserved information, we take the opportunity of enlightening the enquiring scribbler. The following letters we cut from the Madison State Journal. They will throw considerable light on the causes which influenced the Republican governor, ch ? Bonton, March 10th, 1856,

To his Escellency, Wm. A. Barston, Covernor of Sin: -I have this day received a letter from Edward , confined in State Prison under a sentence for the murder of Edward Mantey. By was tried before me some four years ago, a umbia Circuit, and I presume you are familian Leakey was tried basine in a some only year a familiar with the facts in his case.

From, what appeared on the trial, I was satisfied that Massley seduced Leakey's wite, and that, too, under circumstances more than ordinarily aggravating. This act was frequently thrown, with tunits, into Leakey's face by Mandey himself. Lenkey had brought several civil raits before justices of the peace, and also made several criminal complaints. But in nit he falled for what reason I know not, except it be the indused of Mandey in the neighborhood, or the general belief that Leakey was deranged. Finally, after three repeated failures, Leakey, upon the last acquitated by the Justice, in the public court room, shot hander, killing him lostapity. Tuching's conduct was that of a main urged to freing, and he was, perhaps, really lossane with langer and morification. White the law does not justify a man in taking another's life under such circumstances, still, I bink in proper cases no harm anoutil result to the community of the executive pardon rous interposed, after a reasonable period of imprisonment.

While the proof on the trial did not satisfy my mind period of imprisonment. Whilst the proof on the trial did not satisfy my mind that Leahey's insanity was such as to excuse him in the eyes of the law, sill, I thought his not was very far from that degree of turphinds which characterizes old-bloomed murderer. short. 1 WOULD RECOMMEND LEAHEY'S

I should advise making it a condition of pardon that Leahey at once leave the State not to return, for the reason that there is great feeling against him at Marcellon, in Columbia Co., and because of the (to me) yroundless fears of persons there.

Very Respectfully,

It was undemiably a much abler and more earnest Convention than that of the Douglasites of the 4th ult. The delegates included a large number of the most influential of the Democratic leaders—the "old guard" of the party. A full Electoral ticket was nominated, but no candidates were presented for State officers. This most important Convention seals the fate of Douglasism, which will henceforth rapidly decline throughout the Northwest, as elsewhere."

GEN. SCROGGS, of Erie county, is President of the American State Council, and was a delegate to the late Bell-Everett State Convention. In common with many of the Americans of this State, he has become disgusted with the attempt of HUNT, BROOKS & Co., to transfer the American party over to the Pro-Slavery Democracy. He chooses 2 different road, and prefers Freedom to Slavery, and Lincoln to Douglas. His reasons for this preference are stated with great clearness and force.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 9.

The Republican demonstration in this city to-day has been undoubtedly the largest, most imposing and enthusiastic ever held in the United States. A number of reporters for the Exstern Press agree in pronouncing it is for the createst in numbers and horse. for the Exsert Fress agree in pronouncing to by far the greatest in numbers and horse-power they ever witnessed. The special train from Unicago brought between four and five thousand persons. The train from Alton brought twenty eight hundred, by actual count. MoLean County sent over three thousand. The regular train from the East, on the Great Western Road, brought fifteen hundred, including a large number from Iudiana. The regular and special trains from the West, on the same Road, brought over two thousand, including a delegation of two thousand.

two thousand, including a d-legation of Wide-Awakes from Hannibal Mo.

Menard county sent a procession of teams a mile and a half in length, including a mammoth flat-boat on wheels. Sangamon county was literally poured into the city—men, women and children. The town of Wilhamsville sent a gigantic car, drawn by sixty oxen, with rail-cuts, mauls, wedges and rail splitters. The counties of Macon, Montagonery, Maconpin, Morgan, Cass and Logan, and was chartered for the present expedition because of her great strength and power to gomery, macoupin, morgan, cass and Logan, each sent long caravans with banners and bands of music. Champain county sent one hundred and eighty teams, with over five hundred men, who camped two nights, for the purpose of swelling the great procession. Obristian county sent one hundred and three wagons and so on. There were more persons in the city, at sunrise this morning than the entire crown at the Douglas demonstration two weeks ago. There are some fifty Wide-Awake Companies here in full uniform. The crowd became almost unmanageable before the hour for forming in the line of march, but having been at last marshaled in order the procession occurred the near flows in a could stream. A BUOLE BLAST FROM THE RACINE CIR. CUIT COURT. - Judge Noggle, yesterday, gave his opinion in the case of T. D. Strong, o N. Y. vs. S. H. Sage, of this city, in the case of a mortgage given by defendant to the R. & M. R. R. for a certificate of stock to the

R. & M. R. R for a certificate of stock to the amount of five hundred dollars.

This case was different from those heretofore decided by the Supreme Cont., in the fact that this mortgage was left as collateral security with the plaintiff by the R. & M. R. R. Co., and was not the property of the plaintiff, bona fide, but the property of the R. & M. R. R. Co. which had failed to meet its obligations to plaintiff, and hence this suit to collect upon the collaterals. A NOTHER FATAL Accident at Rowlet's BAY.—We learn from Robert McGavin that another fatal accident occurred yesterday at another fatal Milwankee, over the Detroit & Milwankee,

The Rev. Mc. Bartlett. An anonymous attack upon the Rev. Mr.

BARTLETT appeared in the Free Democrat of last Monday, which was in spirit so invidious, narrow-minded and downright mean that I can hardly forbear giving it an attention that I know it does not deserve. If the writer of it had inscribed himself "Driveler" instead of "Let her Drive," he would have displayed a little candor in his soubriquet, though none in his article. The communication must have been dictated either by personal enmity, or else by that beggarly spirit which prompts some Cause in progress. prople to be ever bestavering the objects of their envy with the slime of detraction. Mr. BARTLETT, as a public man, is of course omenable to fair criticism, such for

Why, here is a youth of some twenty-five summers, endowed with talents, be they more or less, with imagination, exhuberance of language, and energy of character, who is endeavoring to make the most of his endowments, not in the service of vice, not all this is apparent when we remember that Mr. BARTLETT has been now more than two years constantly before the public preaching daily fer the most of the time, almost with in sound of volces of such men as BEECHER CHAPIN and BELLOWS, and having congre gatious which rival theirs in numbers, intelligence and enthusiasm, and also that the of the largest and most intelligent audiences that ever assembled in this city, with an attention intense and almost breathless

Who couldn't see with half an eye that such a young man is soon to "slide into obsourity," ospecially if that half an eye was aundiced with jealousy.

There is one sentence in the article we are speaking of, which reveals somewhat the ause of the author's distaste for the Rev. gentleman. He thinks that if Mr. B. had confined himself to notes, without making my effort to extemporize, and thus appeared in the pulpit like a mesk follower of Jesus Christ," it would have been altogether a differnt matter.

Here we have the real genus, "Old Fogy He tak as exception to Mr. B.'s physiological' appearance, too, and thinks him not cut out

With stooping shoulders and lean, cadaverous face, every lineament of which is drawn down to the angle of utter misery, he steps forward to his desk as if the pulpit before him was the coffin of his last friend and he was about to hold the obsequies of the universe.

The hymns are read with "that good old whine" which has thrilled every old lady in the congregation for twenty years, and the sermon follows—the reader casting only now and then a dodging glance from his manuscript upon his drowsy auditory, while it is a question which has been most successful, No man of any feeling would allow anything the dyspensia in dictating the thoughts or the broughitis in regulating the delivery of

As "mesk as Moses" he expounds the doctrines of total depravity, predestination and salvation by grace, giving now and then a sec-saw gesture where the grean is to come in, but of figures of speech, garnishments of rheteric or graces of action or elecution as guiltless as he is innocent of the faintest idea of practical life.

Such preachers I have beard. They belong to the good old time whose departure those of our scribblers ilk, no doubt, sadly deplore our live cities.

Mr. BARTLET, though not without faults, is, in the essential points of a successful preacher, up to the demands of the age, as his popularity demonstrates, and he need not be nettled by the scurrilous distribes of ary such old lady critic, but just "let her drive" at him to her hearl's content. We would advise her, however, not to put herself too often within ear-shot of such preaching, for name, sir; so full, and round, and plump. if a bright, living, progressive idea should happen to hit her fairly in the head. the con sequences might be fatal.

A Stampede. No observant individual can regard the events of the day without being aware of a very general existampede. Not a paper can we take up without seeing the defection of a prominent Democrat. Every press heralds the return of men to principles. There seems to be, indeed, a panic in the Democratic ranks, and an urgent desire on the part of all the oldest-and more worthy members to cut loose from the Douglas hulk before it goes down.

Among the Germans, this thing is especially desired as the sacred birthright of svery American citizen? Ask any slave holder who may be present in this vast assembly whether he does not deem it wrong and unjustifiable that I, an anti-slavery man, should be permitted to give a public express prominent Democrat. Every press heralds

Among the Germans, this thing is especially noticable. The course of CARL SCHURE through Illinois and Missouri has been mark. ed by a complete revolution in sentiment; and even here in our own city we can name scores of prominent Germans who have come out holdly from the rank and file of Democrany and signed their names on the Republicau Club books. It has for fome 'than been evident that the direct trade (xists more in fancy than in reality, and this opinion has reteived strong confirmation this year when, good rates being paid at home, very few vessels have gone to Europe. The statement of the report upon this point receives additional force when it is understood that nearly all of the gentle nen whose manes are attached to it, and who prepared it, have been engaged more or less in this very trade during the last three years. The free navigation of the St, lawrences is of benefit to the West, to be sure, but no such benefit as to compensute for the cylis that the tariff and the treaty inflict upon us.

What is more consistent, therefore, than that fundamental liberties should be disregarded whenever they become dangerous; that the safe-guards of human rights in the administration of justice should be set aside whenever the emergency calls for prompt and energetic action; that the masses should be left uneducated, in order to give the slaveholding olinothing to do at home, and their owners garchy an undisputed sway? In one word, send them across the Atlantic than have their docks.

Tome thus been evident that the direct of the individual should have to yield to the paramount consideration of the safety of the ruling interest? All this is true; and accepting the premises, all these necessities exist. You seem startled at this proposition, and ask, "what is the institution that demands for its protection such measures?" The slave States are by no means original in this respect. Look at the kingdom of Naples, where the ruling power is governed by simi-lar exclusive interests, and acts on the same

Having identified their social existence with the existence of slavery, they cannot act otherwise.

It is necessity that urges them on. It is true that slavery is an inflammable element. A stray spark of thought or hope may cause a terrible conflagration. The torch of free speech and press, which gives light to the house of liberty, is very apt to set on fire the house of slavery. What is more natural than that the torch should be extinguished, where there is such an abundance of explosion and the speech and press, which gives light to the house of slavery. apt to follow in the track of our sympathies and aspirations. It was when the South had control of our government that acts were passed for the purpose of raising duties on imports, for the creation of a national bank, and in aid of the American shipping interest. It was under the lead of the South that the systems of internal improvement and of the protection of home industry were inaugurated; it was the South no less than the North that insisted upon and exercised the power of Congress to exclude slavery from the Territories. So long as these meas-ures seemed to agree with the predominant interest there seemed to be no question about their constitutionality. Even Mr. Calboun himself said in one of his most celebrated speeches delivered in the session of 1815-116, "That it was the duty of the Govern-ment, as a means of defence, to encourage the domestic industry of the country." But questioned so long as the prevailing sent-ment in the South ran against the perpetua-tion of slavery. The Missouri Compromise was held as sacred and inviolable as the Constitution itself, so long as it served to introduce slave States into this Pnion; but no scouer were, by virtue of its provisions, free Territories to be organized, then its un-

The predominance of interests determines the construction of the Constitution. So it was and so it ever will be. Only those who surrounded by slave territory?

Indeed! This, then, is the practical solutional programme of the discoult which Mr. Douglas proples underlying interests, and the conflict of constitutional constructions will settle itself.

This may seem dangerous political theory. It is not an article of my creed—not a matter of principle—but a matter of experience; not a doctrine, but a fact.

Thus the all pervading antagonism stands before us, gigantic in its dimensions, growing every day in the awful proportions of its problem, involving our relations with the problem, however, involving our peace, our rights and libertles at home; involving our growth and prosperity; involving our moral and political existence as a nation.

Tree mendous applause.] Slavery demands the that of the liberty of all men. [Lond cheers] With one word, slavery demands for its protection and perpetuation a system of policy which is utterly incompatible with the principles upon which the organization of free labor society rests.

There is the antagonism. That is the essence of the "irrepressible conflict." It is a conflict of principles underlaying interests, always the same, whether apparing as a travelle engagement, and to the labor society rests.

conflict of principles underlaying interests, always the same, whether appearing as a modal, economical, or political question. Mr. Douglas boasted that he could repress it with police measures; he might as well try to fetter the winds with a rope. The South means to repress it with decisions of the South means to repress it with decisions of the South means to repress it with decisions of the South means to repress it with decisions of the South through the waves of the ocean by throwing chains into the waves of the ocean by throwing chains into the water. [Appianse]

The conflict of constitutional constructions is indeed but a mere incident of the great struggle, a mere symptom of the crisic. Long before the slavery question in the form of an abstract constitutional controversy agitated the public mind, the conflict of interest raged the struggle about the encouragement of home industry and internal improvements.

THE HARVEST IN WAUKESHA COURTY. A gentleman writing from Eagle under date of August 9, says:

The hervesting in this section is rapidly drawing to a close, Many Lave finished stacking, while others are making all necessary haste to properly secure that which is still in shock.

Some two or three families have threshed a few bushels for grinding, and have estimated the yield at thirty bushels per acre. We think it is safe to place the average estimate at twenty-fire, in this vicinity.

The sample is very fine—the rains not having in the least injured the grain. B. AMONG THE NOTABILITIES at Saratoga is Among the london Rothschilds, a little insignificant looking Jew, resembling the shabilities of cold clot dealer in Charham street. His yearly allowance for pocket money is said to be £25,000 sterling; but the papers state the sum in the money of France to make a better show -750,000 france-and his mether is expected to make up the deficiency if he overruns that amount—as be is quite likely to do if he indulges in some of the propensities he has exhibited here. He might stand whist at fifty a game, although he plays like a green-horn—but roulette and faro, to which he addiets himself just now, if steadily followed, would break the Bank of England. Apropus of faro, the only public place in the village where one can procure a decent supper is Scribner's—"Scrib," as he is familiarly called, whose skill in turning a card is only equalled by the excellence of the cuisinc of his establishment.—The establishment is liable to cost rather heavily, but that is a small consideration.
